Specific Information for All Internal Achievement Standards

Students should be given the opportunity to present evidence in a format that suits their individual learning style or the context of the assessment activity. Suggested formats include: computer-assisted presentation, timeline, journal, essay, brochure, poster, photo-essay, debate, role-play, drama performance, video, model, and prepared speech.

Students may work on assessments individually or in groups, however each student must produce an individual final product.

It is expected that the analysis is largely informed by material independently sourced by the student, with some guidance from a teacher or supervisor.
